ABOUT SEA TUTORS

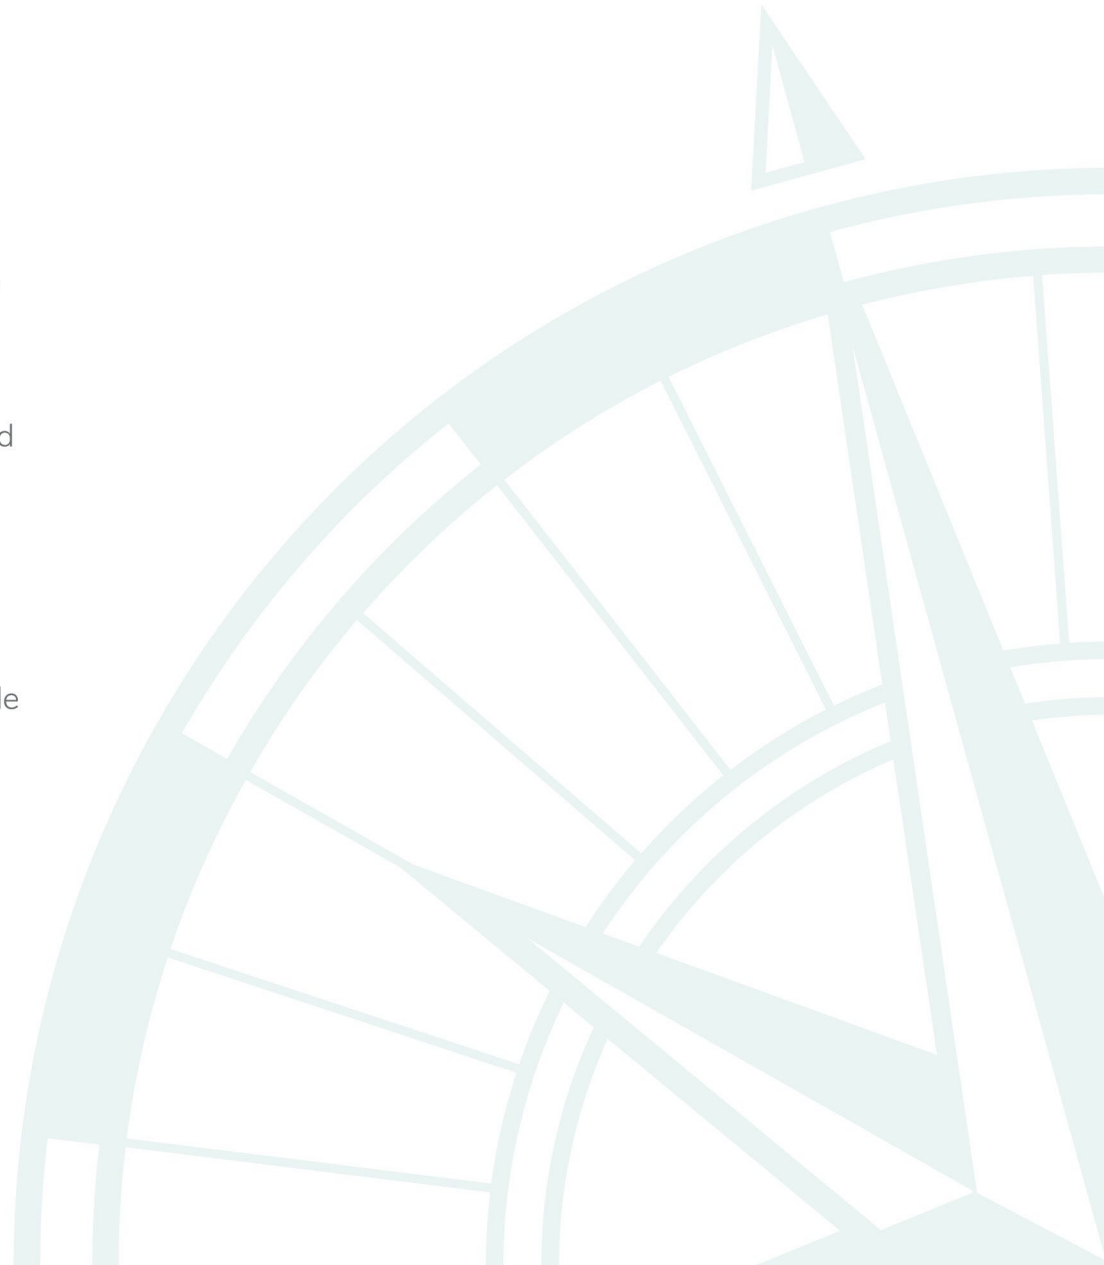

Sea Tutors provides custom-designed educational experiences for families living aboard yachts. We understand the unique challenges faced with this lifestyle and offer experienced qualified tutors, who cater to each student's individual needs. Leveraging the expertise of Tutors International, we have a deep understanding of the educational priorities of UHNW families and are well-equipped to meet these requirements with precision and excellence.

WHAT WE OFFER

UNMATCHED EXPERTISE

- Our global network of highly qualified and experienced educators covers diverse subject areas, ensuring we find the perfect match for every student.
- All our tutors undergo rigorous background checks, hold advanced degrees, and possess exceptional pedagogical skills.
- We have specialist educators who can support a spectrum of learning differences from severe neuro diversity to the highly gifted.
- We deliver focused environmental and marine education alongside international curriculums tailored to each student's needs.

WHAT WE OFFER

FLEXIBLE AND BESPOKE SOLUTIONS

- We offer flexible tutoring arrangements that adapt to individual family's specific schedules and itineraries.
- Our yacht-based curriculum emphasises marine, conservation, and geographic education. Students learn about marine biology, conservation efforts, navigation skills, and geographical exploration.
- Our tutors are experienced with facilitating remote learning and utilising online resources.

WHAT WE OFFER

A CULTURAL EDUCATION

- We transcend the limitations of traditional education, crafting immersive and real-world learning experiences aboard our client's yachts.
 - Why read about ancient Roman ruins when you can explore them firsthand?
 - Practice conversational French while indulging in freshly baked croissants from local bakeries.
 - Gain insights into volcanoes by standing at the edge of an active one in Vanuatu, experiencing the raw power of nature up close.
- Learning about a language helps all students adapt to different cultures.

WHAT WE OFFER

FOSTERING GLOBAL CITIZENS

- Sea Tutors unique travel-based learning exposes students to diverse ecosystems and cultures, fostering an understanding of the interconnectedness of our planet.
- Students witness first-hand the impact of human actions on our planet. They do not just learn about the Amazon's deforestation or the damage to marine life, they witness it firsthand.
- Real-world exposure ignites a passion for environmental consciousness inspiring students to become responsible global citizens promoting sustainable practices.
- Our students graduate not just with academic excellence, but with a deep commitment to protecting the world they explore.

WHAT WE OFFER

HOLISTIC DEVELOPMENT

We go beyond academics, fostering well-rounded individuals through sports, arts, hobbies, and social skills development.

Our tutors ensure all students:

- Develop social skills by interacting with diverse individuals in new cultural environments.
- Build self-confidence by overcoming challenges and mastering new skills, both in and out of the classroom.
- Nurture creativity and curiosity through unique learning experiences and exploration of different cultures.
- Engage in physical activity through on board fitness routines, water sports, and exploring diverse landscapes.
- Discover personal passions through exposure to new hobbies and interests like photography, marine biology, or sailing.

WHAT WE OFFER

PROVEN TRACK RECORD

We have a successful history of providing tutors to families on board yachts.

CASE STUDY ONE

- One year circumnavigation
- 3 girls: 11, 10, and 8 years old
- 2 full-time tutors (teaching couple)
- Mediterranean, Caribbean, South Pacific, Southeast Asia

BACKGROUND

This family took a year to go sailing during which their daughters were homeschooled aboard their family yacht in preparation for entrance exams for the top London private girls' schools. A teaching couple were appointed to ensure all subjects could be covered for all three students in a way that complemented the learning environment without compromising educational rigour.

OUTCOME

All three girls were accepted to their first-choice schools. The girls all enjoyed engaging with topics related to their travel, in particular marine animals – sea turtles and dolphins!

“Every other Friday they have a Regional Module, where they work with the tutors on the geography, history and culture of the country we are in. They had decided last week that they would put on a Greek play, using their knowledge from Pompeii combined with research into Greek life and mythology. They wrote the play, made props, costumes, programmes and music, and practised and practised and practised some more. Amazing!”

CASE STUDY TWO

- 6 months
- 2 students: 4 and 5 years old
- 1 full-time tutor (Marine Scientist, Diving Instructor)
- Morning for academics; afternoons for activities
- South Pacific itinerary

BACKGROUND

This family took their children out of a top London preparatory school for one term to enjoy the maiden voyage of their yacht around the South Pacific. The tutor was charged with ensuring the children were kept up to date with their peers, as well as using the many locations as enriching learning opportunities with particular emphasis on the marine environment.

OUTCOME

As well as reintegrating seamlessly into their school, both boys learned to snorkel, kayak, and dive. The family continued to enlist one of our tutors for other trips over the years.

“We have done some amazing activities, a lot of which the adults decide to come on to! Some memorable moments have been horse riding along a beach, visiting an active volcano, hiking through jungles, climbing up waterfalls and visiting traditional villages to witness spirit dances and land-jumping. We were also really lucky to be on a deserted beach in New Caledonia when several sea snakes slithered ashore to lay their eggs! Pretty unique and the children loved it!”

CASE STUDY THREE

- 1 month - summer holiday
- 2 students: 6 and 4 years old
- Motor yacht
- 1 full-time tutor
- Mediterranean

BACKGROUND

An antipodean family wanted to spend the European summer enjoying their new motor yacht. They required a tutor to work with the student's school to ensure they covered all the necessary work as well as organising a location driven enrichment programme.

OUTCOME

The students not only kept up with their peers, but both reading and written levels improved dramatically throughout the summer. Topical work on ancient Greece, marine animals, and volcanoes was enjoyed by all.

"It was wonderful having E during the trip and we were very grateful for all of her extra help with the kids. They both miss her! It was a super helpful experience having a teacher travel with us, our daughter is now ahead in her school work, and has done really well with her reading. We know you already know E is amazing, but she really couldn't have been lovelier to have around and we were so happy she had been willing to join us on the trip.

We also appreciated how seamless and stress-free you made the process of finding a tutor. If we are doing any extended travel in the future (we likely will be), then we would love for E to join us again if she's available, and if she is busy then we are confident you would find someone else who is also really great."

CASE STUDY FOUR

- 5 months
- 3 students: 15, 16 and 18 years old
- 2 full-time tutors
- Southeast Asia

BACKGROUND

This family wanted to travel around Southeast Asia. Their three teenage daughters were at a crucial time in their academic journey. Two tutors homeschooled the girls to ensure they kept up to date with their peers as well as using the different locations to enrich their learning.

OUTCOME

All three girls successfully maintained pace with their peers and respective school curriculums, and seamlessly reintegrated into their school life when they returned home.

"It was wonderful having both tutors with us and they became an integral part of our family adventure. Every corner of our yacht was transformed into a vibrant classroom! Our girls were so lucky to learn about marine biology anchored off a remote Thai island. They collected seashells and made makeshift nets. Both tutors used the environment to teach our girls about responsible exploration and local ecosystems. They learnt so much more than any teacher in a classroom could ever teach them!"
